DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 5/11/04 has been entered.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments filed 5/11/04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The amended claims still read on the Schein reference of record.

3. Applicant has addressed claim 17, which has been previously non-elected in accordance with the restriction requirement made in the Office Action dated 5/09/03.

The examiner notes that this claim will not be addressed and must be cancelled.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Schein et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,002,394).

Referring to claim 1, Schein discloses receiving an editorial content index page and an editorial content item at a client device (see Column 7, Lines 39-43 for a board located at the viewer's television set (client device) for receiving program guide information). The examiner notes that the applicant's disclosure of "editorial content" is broad and encompasses "a wide variety of opinions and facts regarding programming, typically entertainment and other audio/video information, distributed over a distribution network such as a cable television network".

Schein discloses that program schedule information is transmitted to a client device (see again Column 7, Lines 39-43), and that the program schedule information is kept in a database (Column 7, Lines 16-19), and the database contains a N.E.W.S. (news, entertainment, weather, and sports) database, which includes story text and story ids. This data constitutes as "editorial content" as stated by the applicant, since news (as well as sports, weather, and reviews (opinions) of programs) data stored in the database, inherently contains facts relating to programming content. Schein also discloses storing electronic program guide data for future display (see Column 7, Lines 16-23). Schein also discloses that the editorial content index page includes one or more links to the editorial content items (see Figure 20B for a link to new stories).

Schein also discloses that while the electronic program guide is displayed (see display of element 502, which is an electronic program guide in Figure 16A), selecting a control to present the editorial content index page on the display device (see element 512 in Figure 16A, which provides a scrolling list of options shown in Figure 20A, in which "World of Services" has been selected). The examiner notes that the index of editorial content displayed in Figures 20B contains facts and opinions about specific programming.

Art Unit: 2611

Schein also discloses recovering and displaying the stored editorial content page (see Column 7, Lines 60-64 for receiving information used to create N.E.W.S. information in the electronic program guide and Column 8, Lines 15-17 and Lines 25-30 for receiving a user-input which causes the system to recover the selected program guide option for display).

Schein also discloses selecting a link to an editorial content item from the set of one or more links (see Column 23, Lines 50-64) and Figures 20B and 20C to show selection of a message containing editorial content).

Schein also discloses recovering (see again Column 8, Lines 15-17 and Lines 25-30) and presenting the editorial content item on the display device (see Figure 20C).

Referring to claim 2, Schein discloses that the editorial data comprises graphics data (see element 528 in Figures 20A-20C and Column 22, Lines 3-8 for a description of a preview window, which contains graphics that are displayed in accordance with what is highlighted in matrix 506), and rendering the graphics data (see element 124 in Figure 3 and Column 8, Lines 58-67 and Column 9, Lines 1-18).

Referring to claim 3, Schein discloses that the editorial content item comprises video data (see element 528 in Figures 20A-20C and Column 22, Line 3-8 for a description of a preview window, which contains video that is displayed in accordance with what is highlighted in matrix 506).

Referring to claim 4, Schein discloses that the editorial content item comprises interactive program code (see presenting a "super mall" for purchasing products at Column 23, Lines 46-48) and wherein presenting the editorial content comprises executing the interactive program code (see Column 23, Lines 55-65 for accessing a special database that provides additional information from an online service provider or the Internet when "headline news" is selected).

Referring to claim 5, Schein discloses that the interactive program code comprises functionality that allows a client device to interact with a remote program code and data (see rejection of claim 4 in relation to accessing an online service provider or the Internet upon selection of "headline news").

Referring to claim 6, Schein discloses determining a type of the editorial content item (see Figure 20B for selecting either "Headline News", "Sports", or "Music Videos" for example). It is inherent that the system knows which item is being chosen for display.

Schein also discloses selecting a rendering program based on the type of the editorial content item (see Figure 20C for displaying items related to "Headline News"). Also note element 124 in Figure 3 for formatting certain information to be displayed based on which program has been selected (see Column 8, Lines 58-67 and Column 9, Lines 1-18).

Schein also discloses executing the rendering program to present the editorial content item on the display device (see Figure 20C after the selection of "Headline News" in Figure 20B).

Referring to claim 7, see rejection of claim 1. Also note that pointers are analogous to links as described in claim 1.

Art Unit: 2611

Referring to claim 8, Schein discloses receiving the editorial content index page and an editorial content item at a client device on a periodic basis (see Column 2, Lines 62-67 for downloading the television schedule at a specified time).

Referring to claim 9, Schein teaches that the database information that comprises the electronic program guide is sent in a carousel fashion (see Column 12, Lines 38-40).

Referring to claim 10, Schein discloses exiting the editorial content index page (see Column 13, Lines 18-20 for a description of how every screen has an exit function). Schein also discloses presenting the electronic program guide and editorial content control upon exiting the editorial content index page (for example, if the user exits Figure 20B, he/she can then go back to Figure 20A, which contains the program guide and content control).

Referring to claim 11, Schein discloses exiting the editorial content index page (see Column 13, Lines 18-20 for a description of how every screen has an exit function). Schein also discloses presenting a channel displayed on the display device when the step of presenting the electronic program guide is executed (see program area 526 in Figure 16A and Column 22, Lines 3-5).

Referring to claim 12, see rejection of claim 1. Also note that Schein discloses a preview area 528 at Column 22, Lines 5-8, which concurrently displays program information with a tuned channel (see program area 526 at Column 22, Lines 3-5).

Referring to claims 13-14, see rejection of claims 10-11, respectively.

Referring to claim 15, see rejection of claim 1.

Art Unit: 2611

Referring to claim 16, see rejection of claims 1 and 2.
